“ Benji and I grew up in Palmview, Texas. He'd always be inviting me to church services and youth meetings on Saturdays. At first I wasn't to sure if I'd like it, but with time I learned to love listening to the word of God, alongside my friend....my friend Benji. Benji, I will always remember you!

“ God bless you, Ben. You were a remarkable man and a light in our lives. My greatest hope is for the children, but after attending the funeral today, I can see that Madeleine and Ben Jr. will be in good hands. God bless Chloe as well. She's been through so much, just as they have.

I will never forget the kindness you showed me over the past 10 yrs, Ben.

“ Benji was La Joya High School's most awesome trumpet player. His solos during our football half-time shows gave you goosebumps. I can still picture him, standing apart from us, showcasing his talent to the audience as we played our half-time program. I have not seen anyone again as talented as he was on trumpet. The graduating class of 1983 from La Joya High School has lost a good friend. We will miss him.

“ Best regards to the family; Understandably shocked to discover this by a friend of ours that haphazardly found it on the internet, Ben's stepdaughter Chloe (Carie's daughter) and family were not contacted and undoubtedly would not have been, including for the viewing or funeral, which is a shame due to having half-siblings and natural concern for whom thereof. God Bless and be with the children, family, and friends.
