A longtime friend remarked that whenever the church served a big meal, Betty would pass up everything and head straight for the desserts. He asked why one day, and she replied with an infectious smile that, "You have to get to the good stuff first because you never know how long you're going to last." Another friend reflected on her passing and said, "Well you know, now she can hear."

She will be greatly missed by all. Betty was preceded in death by her
