

Coin Williams

December 22, 1954 - March 18, 2012

BEDFORD -- Coin Lu Williams, 57, went home to the Lord, Sunday, March 18, 2012.

Celebration of life: 2 p.m. Thursday at Lucas Funeral Home, 1321 Precinct Line Road in Hurst. Rev. Lawrence Hammond will officiate.

She was a Russian linguist in the U.S. Army during the Russian Afghanistan War. She worked many interesting jobs, including as a chemist and also as a stockbroker for TD Ameritrade.

She was preceded in death by her mother, Marjorie Williams; sister, Sammie Williams; and brother, Nathan Williams.

Survivors: Parents: William Samuel Williams and Joyce Williams. Sisters, Nan Williams, Deneise Laywell; brothers, James Brown, Richard Brown; nieces and nephews, Jarrett Gibson, Jason Brown and Kary Cottrell.

Tribute Wall

“Coin was the sweetest, most loving friend at DLI. The Army was a new and often lonely place. Coin had recently reentered the Army--after a trying time in her life: she knew the ropes, and she was always an encouragement to us all. She was a trusted confident and friend. I had the privilege of knowing her during some very happy days and double dates. Later, in Augsburg, Germany, she was the Maid of Honor at my wedding. After my ETS, I spoke with her via telephone--once again, she was suffering heartache and great loss. She soon changed her phone number, and I was never able to contact her again. Throughout the years, I searched for her, on and off. I even tried to contact her through her father's office, but never got a reply. Just today, 7/14/16, I found this page. I hope that she had found her little redhead. I hope that she had enjoyed many years of love and happiness. I am grateful, that she had her sister, Nan. We were at Ft. Devens, when Sam and her mama were killed; it almost killed her, too. I know that Coin was a committed Christian, who loved Jesus with all her heart, and I know that I will see her soon.

Bonnie~

Bonnie Van der Mark - July 14, 2016 at 02:21 PM