“ He was a great guy & will be missed. He was always teasing he & my dad played this joke on their Aunt Minnie for years they told her that the military had put a tatoos on their head of their social security number. Explaining that it was the reason why they had be given crew cuts when they enlisted. She never quit looking through their hair trying to find their numbers. Dewey Lee had money taken out of his navy pay sent home to Aunt Minnie to pay for things Dad & their sister Rosemary might need. It was not required of him in any way but he wanted to look after them
